Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP also consults the personal information on our existing files for these purposes.

Consent for the collection, use or disclosure of personal information:

Your knowledge and consent are required before we may collect, use or disclose your personal information, except in certain special circumstances as outlined in the privacy act. Consent may be express and implied. Express consent is explicit and obtained through verbal or written means. Implied consent is inferred when the purpose for which personal information is collected is obvious by the very nature of the transaction. . We accept any of the following as your consent for Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP’s existing use or future collection, use or disclosure of your personal information for identified purposes.

- Receipt of this Personal Information Policy, unless you advise us otherwise in writing.

- Your express oral consent when dealing by telephone
- Your written consent
- Your consent as provided by your authorized representative, a guardian or power of attorney
- If you have an existing insurance policy and you request amendments to the policy,
- For us to provide you with on-going coverage, it is assumed that the consent, verbal or written that you gave to us when you originally purchased the policy or requested a quote remains in effect.

If your personal information is not for one of the “identified purposes” listed, we will not use or disclose it without obtaining additional consent from you.

Consent to the use of and disclosure of your personal information can be withdrawn by notice in writing to our Chief Privacy Officer. Please note however, that withdrawal of your consent may result in us being unable to continue to provide insurance services to you.

Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP may disclose personal information to third parties who are necessary to assist in the provision of insurance products and services. Examples of such third parties are insurers, other brokers, risk managers, associations related to program business, premium finance organizations, banks, mortgagees, lien holders, lessors, claims adjusters, investigators, lawyers, accountants and others involved in the claims handling process. These organizations are limited in how they may use personal information and they are obligated to protect the privacy of information with which they have been provided.

Retention of personal information:

Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP keeps personal information only as long as it remains necessary in order to meet and maintain your insurance needs or as required by law.

Safeguards of your personal information:

Whether electronic or paper-based format, Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP maintains security systems to protect your personal information from unauthorized access, disclosure or misuse. Access is granted only to those who require it for authorized purposes. As well, when we no longer need your information, we take as much care to destroy it as we do when storing it.

Accuracy and access:

Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP takes reasonable steps necessary to ensure that your personal information is accurate and up-to-date. Of course, Baird MacGregor Insurance Brokers LP relies on its clients and its third party suppliers to provide all material information and to notify us of any changes.

You have the right to access, review and if applicable correct the personal information held by us. However, the right to access is not absolute and there are certain exceptions established by law. For example, if the information which is requested is subject to a legal privilege, is confidential commercial information, or would give you access to someone else’s personal information the request may be declined.

A request for access to your personal information can be made in writing. Such requests must provide satisfactory identification and proof of entitlement. A reasonable charge may be made for providing requested information.
